COBA Internship Program

Overview
The internship program offers COBA students the chance to receive academic credits while gaining applicable work experiences. The program is presented through the upper-level Business Courses, BUSA 4229 or CISM 4900. In the past, local, national, and international companies have partnered with the College of Business in an effort to provide students with the opportunity to develop skills that ensure marketability in an ever-growing workforce.

Internships are coordinated through COBA’s Placement Center with the support of the University’s Center for Leadership and Development. The Placement Coordinator serves as a liaison between students and corporations and works to ensure that both parties are receiving the optimal benefits from this partnership.

Prerequisites
Eligibility for BUSA 4229 or CSIM 4900 is determined by academic standing, grade point average, and faculty recommendation. Student must complete at least 75 credit hours (including MGNT 3165), possess a GPA of 3.0 in the upper level Business courses (3000-4000 level), possess an overall GPA of 2.75, and submit two faculty recommendations (one of which MUST come from a COBA faculty member). Once requirements are met, students are encouraged to visit the COBA Placement Center.

Acceptance
After students have met the prerequisites and have obtained an approved internship, a placement agreement must be signed by the Student, the Employer, and the Placement Coordinator. This agreement outlines the terms and conditions of the Student’s internship and states the responsibilities of each of the aforementioned parties.

Evaluation
BUSA 4229 & CISM 4900 are PASS/FAIL courses. A passing grade is determined by the completion of various assignments that are outlined in the course syllabus. These assignments include reflective essays, time logs, and a final project. During the course, the student along with his/her supervisor will complete two formal evaluations. One evaluation will be completed when the student reaches the mid-point of the internship and the other during the ending stage.
Internship Guidelines

Finding an Internship

An internship is a way for students to gain valuable experience prior to officially entering the work force. In addition to offering applicable training, internships also provide opportunities to build professional networks that can be integral to obtaining a career following graduation. Prior to searching for an internship, it is important to consider the following things:

- What is the best time of year for you to complete an internship?
- Do you plan to complete the internship while taking courses?
- What regions will you be willing to relocate to for an internship?
- How will the position help you to achieve your overall career goals?
- Will the position increase your hireability upon graduation?

It is important to allot yourself an adequate amount of time to prepare and apply for these positions. When beginning your search, there are a number of resources available to aid you. Savannah State University has a career network service that provides listings of internship and career opportunities (www.savannahstate-csm.symplcity.com). If there is a specific company that you are interested in, you can visit their website or contact a representative from the company to see what types of opportunities are available. Helpful Hints

Meeting Internship Prerequisites

Prepare Early. The key to scoring a great internship is making yourself highly competitive. Employers seek students who have a combination of academic and extracurricular accolades. Beginning your freshman year, it is important to maintain a consistently high academic record and to take an active role in organizations that are related to your degree program.

Be Advised. Schedule regular appointments with your Academic Advisor. You can use these meetings to formulate a plan of action that assist with the chronological outline of your academic goals.

Build Relationships. The internship program requires two faculty recommendations. Therefore, it is important to build healthy and respectful relationships with your professors in and outside the College of Business.

Save Up. If you are interested in global internships, start saving now! Many oversees opportunities are not paid and often require payment for lodging and travel. Although there are some scholarships available, they usually do not cover the entire cost of the program.

Planning for Your Internship

Research the company. Before the beginning of your internship you should use Annual Reports, periodicals and the World Wide Web to gather information concerning the history and culture of the organization where you will be working.

Secure Accommodations. Most students will be responsible for establishing their own living arrangements. In securing accommodations, make sure the place is affordable, clean, safe, and accessible to public transportation.

Set Goals. Complete a planning document at the beginning of the internship that sets realistic goals and outlines an action plan to monitor and evaluate your progress. You can use this document to frequently evaluate whether your personal and professional goals are being accomplished.

Seek Supervision. Your supervisor’s feedback can be an effective benchmark for evaluating past performance and making decisions about your future efforts. They can also help you to develop a plan to address any needed improvements.

Monitor Your Behavior. Businesses and corporations evaluate your work performance as well as your off the job behavior because it is a reflection of your character. The places you go and the people with whom you associate are indicators of your judgment. Remember to steer clear of places and people that may reflect negatively on your character or judgment.
Ending Your Internship

Be professional. Although most end-dates for internships are predetermined, it is important to follow the termination procedures that the employer has established.

Clean it Up. If you have been assigned a personal office or work area, be sure to remove pictures, posters or other personal items from the walls or other areas. Pack all personal belongings securely in a box and take them with you when you depart.

Give Thanks. Be sure to personally thank all organizational staff who assisted and supported you during the internship. Letters of appreciation should be individualized and written in professional business style.

Follow Up. Thank you cards are a good way to follow up with an employer after the internship has concluded. These notes can also serve as a way for you to reach out to an employer regarding future career opportunities. If a letter of appreciation was written prior to termination then a thank you card can be sent four to six weeks after the internship has concluded.

Sample Reflection

My first week at my internship was enlightening and overall very informative. I came into this position with little knowledge of my job description or what department of the company I would be working in. Over the week I developed a better perspective on the organization and the entails of my job over the duration of my 16 weeks. I work in the department of Grants Management (DGM). The company gives out billion of government tax dollars to organizations that develop and provide behavioral health programs. In DGM, my main duty is to review the applications of organizations’ who desire funding. Some of my other responsibilities include processing and tracking grant documents, performing thorough quality checks on grant documents, and participating in team and client meetings.

I arrived in Anytown, USA a little early so that I could get situated in my apartment which was funded by the organization. I reported to the job on Monday and my first day consisted of meeting the other interns and the program director, and completing my orientation. My first week working in my department consisted of getting familiar with office procedures, understanding the grant process, and getting acquainted and familiar with my supervisor and other staff members.

Although it’s only the first week, I’ve already learned so much! I’ve encountered so many situations where I've had to use information my professors in COBA lectured about. Situations from elevator encounters, handshakes, introductions, social gathering, office lunch outings, and cultural adaptation all have presented themselves over the course of the last week. My hopes are to absorb as much as possible from my environment during the remainder of my time. My goals for this internship are to develop better communications skills that correlate in the business environment. I also would like to build connections that will hopefully open greater doors of opportunity.
